WELCOME MESSAGE

GRANT DWYER
STATE DEVELOPMENT MANAGER

On behalf of the Queensland Rugby Union, I would like to welcome you to Albany Creek Rugby Union Club for the 2021 Santos All Schools 7s Tournament. Naming rights partners Santos are once again providing support for this year's event, with a number of enhancements for attending participants that will see noticeable improvements to the competition.

On behalf of QRU, I would like to thank Santos for their support of the All Schools 7s and their wider commitment to Rugby.

This tournament will provide an opportunity for our participating coaches and athletes to showcase their skills, teamwork and commitment after many weeks of training prior to this event. This year's event will see 80 teams from across 28 schools competing in QRU's premier School Q7s event at South Pine Sports Complex. Both the U15 and U18 girls segments have been increased to 16 team formats to cater for the enormous interest within the female Rugby sevens space.

With the exciting announcement that Brisbane will be hosting the 2032 Olympics, it is our hope that there will be a good number of participants competing this year and in future years, who go on to emulate the likes of Maddi Levi. After competing in the All Schools 7s with Miami SHS, Levi went on to join the QAS Women's Sevens Academy and was then selected to compete at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics earlier this year as part of the Australian Women's Sevens squad. The next few days are also an opportunity for aspiring players to gain exposure to stronger competition and the experience of playing multiple games within a fun and competitive environment. It is an expectation for all participating schools, players and spectators that the highest levels of sportsmanship, fair play and respect for each other and our match officials is adhered to at all times. Above all we encourage you to applaud good play and help support the best possible environment for the players to shine within the fun and enjoyable atmosphere Rugby Sevens provides.

We must express our thanks and acknowledge the many teachers who provide their support to the Q7s tournaments throughout the year. QRU thank you all for your continued support and contribution to ensuring Rugby is the sport of choice for the students participating this weekend.

Once again, welcome to the 2021 Santos All Schools 7s and we wish you a very successful tournament. Rugby Sevens is a fast, open and exciting format of Rugby, enjoy and have fun.

WERCHON JUGGLING XVS AND SEVENS ASPIRATIONS AS HIS SENIOR CAREER BLOSSOMS

2021 has been a year of milestones for Reds academy scrumhalf Louis Werchon, who has gone from strength-to-strength since graduating from Sunshine Coast Grammar School in 2020.

While chasing his XVs aspirations as part of the Reds Academy, he's also been chasing his Sevens dreams as well, and was fortunate enough to represent Queensland at the beginning of the year.

Werchon was one of 12 players to represent Queensland in Olympic trial matches as part of the Santos Festival of Rugby in Narrabri, where he competed against NSW and the Australian Sevens team.

"The Sevens matches in Narrabri were insane," said Werchon.

"It was the hardest most physical Rugby I had played, it was so tiring. They ran us around the park, it was so different to school Rugby.

"It gave me a good grasp of where I was in terms of men's Rugby and where I need to get to."

The Olympic trial matches were Werchon's first foray into senior men's Rugby, despite a handful of A Grade matches for Maroochydore Swans in the Sunshine Coast competition.

Prior to running out for Queensland, Werchon's last Sevens matches were at the 2020 All Schools Sevens with Sunshine Coast Grammar.

Werchon's Sevens journey began at Grammar, taking part in regional Q7s tournaments.

"I first got involved in Sevens through school, our director of Rugby at the time was keen on Sevens, after the First XV season we would travel around and compete in tournaments.

"When I first competed at the All Schools tournament, it was U15s, it was the hardest tournament I had played in. We versed GPS schools in that tournament and they were hard. We started gelling more with each game and started to play better and with each tournament we would finish strongly in the rankings."

Werchon admits he began playing Sevens for the fun of it, but his form has led to plenty of opportunities, including representing Queensland and Australia in junior age groups.

"I pretty much just played Sevens for the fun of it, but it has led to me representing U16s and U18s Queensland teams, and then I had the chance to play for Australia at the 2019 World Schools tournament in New Zealand."

While Sevens representative duties are still on the cards for Werchon, he has been juggling his XVs aspirations as part of the Reds Academy, and with his Premier Rugby club Brothers, where he starred in Colts 1 and made his Premier Grade debut this season.

"I train every week with Reds Academy under Paul Carozza and Dale Roberson, and a few times a week with Brothers.

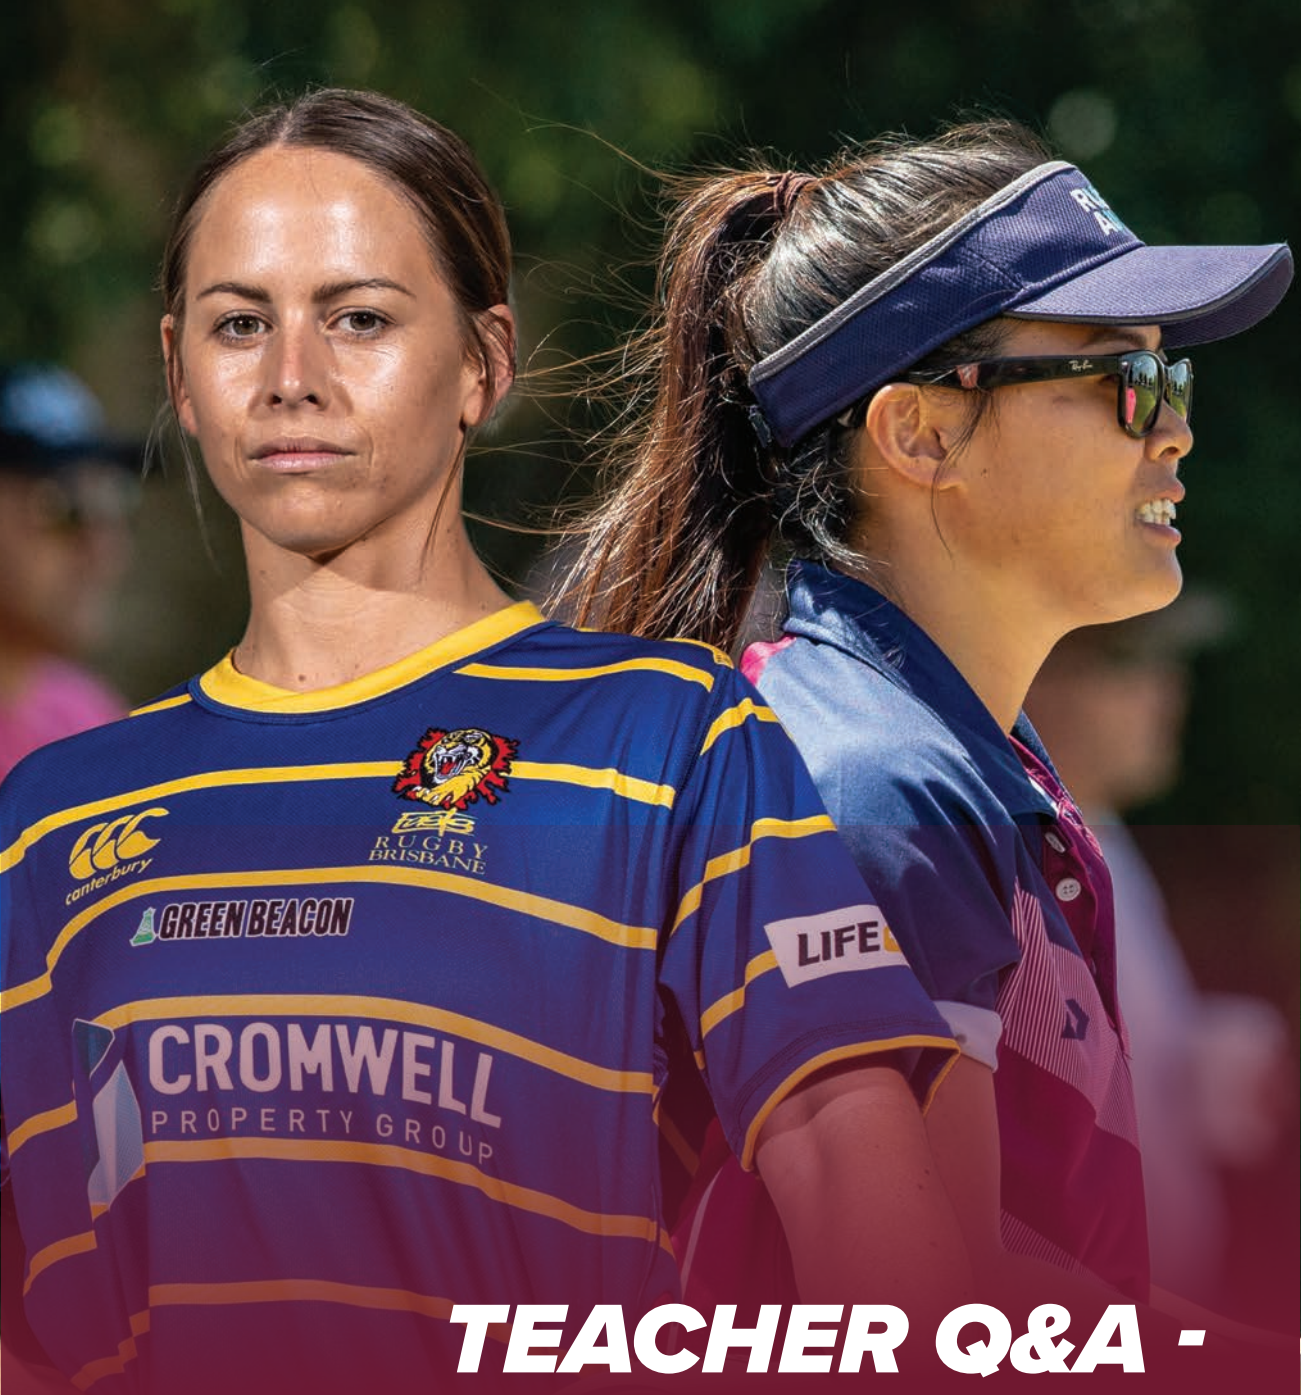
"Premier Rugby is really serious, there is so much depth at each club that you always have other people competing for your position which is really different."

With the inaugural Queensland State Sevens taking place in November at Noosa Rugby Club, Werchon will be returning to the Sunshine Coast to compete for the Stingrays, something which means a lot to the fleet-footed scrumhalf from Forest Glen.

"I'm so keen for the State Sevens," he said.

"I always wanted the Stingrays back in the Premier Rugby competition so to have a tournament where I can wear my home colours will be great. I can't wait to play with my mates from home and compete against the Premier Rugby clubs.

"I love XVs, but I think Sevens suits my skill set and I would love to represent Australia and go to the Olympics for sure."



TEACHER Q&A -

MORGAN TE OKA & ASAKO ONO

– MARSDEN SHS

As Rugby Sevens continues to be one of the fastest growing sports in the world, two teachers from the South-side of Brisbane are at the forefront of inspiring the next generation of women to take up the game, while chasing their own Rugby dreams.

Marsden State High School duo Morgan Te Oka and Asako Ono have been successful in encouraging their students to try the seven-a-side format of the game, so much so that they now have some of the schools' graduates playing alongside them in Queensland Premier Rugby at Easts Rugby Club where the duo both play.

Ono, originally from Japan, came to Australia at a young age to chase her Rugby dreams and was indoctrinated into the game by University of Queensland Rugby Club who embraced her. She has since gone on to represent Queensland in both Sevens and XVs, and was recently part of the Wallaroos wider training squad.

Te Oka, a former touch player who was inspired by the success of the Australian Women's Sevens at the 2016 Olympics in Rio, has won back-to-back Premier Rugby titles with Easts and competed in AON University Sevens with Griffith University.

We caught up with teachers ahead of the Santos All Schools Sevens to get some insights into their playing and coaching careers.

How did you first get involved in Rugby as players?

Te Oka: I started playing Sevens four years ago. My Dad always played in Wellington and when I saw the Olympics I wanted to get involved and give it a go. I was just playing local touch football and softball before then.

Ono: My Dad is a primary school teacher in Japan at one the only few schools to have a Rugby program. His colleague who he coaches with found out there was a trial for a U17s girls development squad and he made me go try out. I was always sporty but never played before, somehow, I made the squad and I started playing Rugby with the local junior club.

How did you first get introduced to coaching?

Te Oka: Heading to university I knew I loved kids and working in a sporting environment, so I got into coaching to help get through university.

Ono: I got into coaching when I started teaching at Ipswich SHS in 2018. I think I'm opposite to Morgan, I only got into coaching because I play and it's definitely not as easy as I originally thought. I've just been trying to implement what my coaches have taught me.

Do you find coaching helps you as players?

Te Oka: I definitely found coaching helped me be a better player. Coaching allows you to develop your knowledge of the game, ability to have better tactical awareness and build team culture, which gives you all the skills to be a leader in a team environment.

What is the most rewarding thing about coaching?

Te Oka: The most rewarding thing about coaching is seeing a team come together and have self-belief. It's the small wins. When your little new player makes courageous tackles, when your best player goes and gets around our ones who are struggling. The joy on their faces after a try or individual and team brilliance. The laughter and fun makes coaching one of the most rewarding jobs in youth sport.

Ono: I enjoy seeing the girls smile when they get the win after the game. I still remember the first ever Rugby Sevens event I went to with Marsden, one of the gun U13s players, she was the quietest little human, I told her a few things I wanted her to do. Not only did she achieve them but also she gained confidence in playing contact sports after that tournament. Ever since she has not stopped being chatty and she's one of the unstoppable players we have now. I love seeing the girls happy because they love what they do.

What is it like to have players you've taught/ coached now playing alongside you in senior Rugby?

Te Oka: I've never felt such deep joy like I have getting to play alongside my students. Sharing the heartache of a battling loss and the triumph of a hard-fought win is such an incredible feeling. It's hard to explain.

Ono: Morgan summarises it perfectly!

One piece of advice for any teacher thinking about introducing Rugby Sevens at their school?

Te Oka: The pathway is there and only getting bigger for our girls. The main advice I'd have is to push past the barriers and work through the challenges. It is in the best interest of our girls that we ensure opportunity and equity grows for them and we give them the space and platform to flourish in Rugby Sevens. It is hard work, but I promise it is worth it when you see the incredible success that comes with seeing your young sprinter who never even thought QAS Rugby Sevens could be an option for them start on their incredible elite athlete journey, knowing that you helped create thisa space.

Ono: Once again, Morgs (Te Oka) summarises it all! I hope many more schools get involved in Rugby Union!

FROM ALL SCHOOLS SEVENS TO THE OLYMPICS

Maddi Levi is Queensland's latest graduate to the Australian Sevens team, having made her debut at the recent Olympic Games in Tokyo, but it wasn't that long ago that the Gold Coast product was running around for Miami State High School in the All Schools Sevens.

Levi started her Sevens journey in Grade 10 at Miami State High School, and her performances for Miami led to her selection in the Gold Coast Cyclones at the 2019 Queensland Youth Girls State Championships.

"I think it was a turning point for my Rugby career," said Levi.

"At that point I was still 50/50 on what I wanted to do sports wise, I was having success with AFL and was still dancing, and the year prior I didn't even make the Gold Coast team.

"But making the Cyclones in 2019 and the success we experienced, it made me fall in love with the sport. To play at Bond in front of a home crowd of family and friends and to share that with my sister Teagan, it was a special experience and it really helped me develop as a player."

Following the 2019 State Championships, the two Levi sisters were selected to play for Queensland at the National Championships on the Sunshine Coast, which Queensland went on to win, and from there Maddi was then selected to represent Australia at the World Youth Schools Championships in New Zealand. Australia eventually defeated Japan in the final to win Gold.

After she experienced so much success in 2019, Levi was looking forward to what 2020 had to offer after joining the Queensland Academy of Sport Women's Sevens Academy, however COVID struck, and Rugby Sevens was one of the most affected sports around the world.

Maddi was thankful to be in lockdown at home with her sister Teagan, and the duo went to work under the online guidance of their QAS Sevens coaches.

"We were doing a lot of Rugby training sessions in lock down, which helped me progress my skills and focus on developing certain parts of my game.

"I was lucky to have Teagan at the same level as me and we trained together before we were able to come together as a squad again."

After lockdown Levi competed for Bond University in the Queensland AON University Series, and then competed in Olympic trials in Sydney at the back end of 2020, whilst also juggling AFL commitments with the Gold Coast Suns.

2021 saw her once again star for Bond University in the National AON University Sevens series, which the Gold Coast team went on to win, before then competing at the Oceania Sevens in Townsville.

Following the culmination of the Oceania tournament, Levi was asked to stay on in North Queensland to help the Australian team prepare for the Olympics, and then the call up to the national team came, and Levi was named as the only uncontracted player in the Australian Women's Sevens squad for the Olympics.

"It was very surreal," she said.

"Mum thought I was playing at joke at first when I called them to share the news. All the contracted girls had trained so hard and I wasn't expecting anything at all when I first got asked to stay in Townsville, I never thought they would take me to Tokyo.

"It wasn't until we touched down in Japan that it all became a reality and reflecting on it in quarantine, I finally realised that I had just competed in the pinnacle of sporting events – which is really exciting."

Levi hopes that her story shows other aspiring young players around the Queensland that there is a pathway in place for them to reach the top levels of the game.

"There is a great pathway in place, especially now days," she said.

"I started playing in Grade 10 and Rugby was just coming into our school and there was limited promotion of female athletes on the Gold coast.

"To see the change in just a few years is amazing, I've been down to local junior events on the Gold Coast and to see girls running around in junior female teams, it's unreal.

"No matter where you are in the state, if you work hard and set your goals anything is achievable.
